

Pentecost Reader's Theatre

Narrator: ...When Pentecost was fully come...

(Knock on the door, it opens)

Simon Peter: Today we have an important date.

Andrew: Let's go now or we'll be late.

James Z: It's a bright, glorious spring day.

John: Let's hurry and get on our way.

Philip: I wonder what the surprise will be?

Bartholomew: We'll just have to wait and see.

(Walk to the temple)

Thomas: We are very near the Temple mount.

Matthew: There are more people than I can count

James A: There are Jews here from every land

Jude: There is hardly any room to stand

Simon: I'm glad we made it in

Matthias: The service is about to begin.

All: Shhhh...

(Wind sound - fan and flames)

All: Wind and Flame Song

Audience 1: These people are drunk!

Audience 2: How is it that we can hear them speak our native languages?

Audience 3: They are just country bumpkins!

(Peter stands up on a platform)

Peter: We are not drunk! It is only 9:00 in the morning. But this is the coming of the Holy Spirit that was promised by Jesus - who you murdered!

Audience All: What shall we do!

Peter: Repent and be baptized. Have your sins forgiven. Then God will send his Spirit to give you life.

Narrator